

History(ies) of the European trade union movement: what contributions to social Europe?

Brussels, 22-23 February 2024

With the ETUC celebrating its 50th anniversary (1973-2023), this is an opportune moment for the ETUI to take a look back at the history of the European trade union movement. Or perhaps 'histories' would be a better word, given its rich diversity. This conference will bring together a consortium of European researchers to analyse different aspects of this story, ranging from the pioneering role of the miners' unions within the European Coal and Steel Community from the 1950s onwards, to the historic contribution of women in European trade unionism, via the role of certain historic national leaders, such as the Italian Bruno Trentin, and the character of trade union dynamics in the countries of eastern Europe.

This hybrid conference, which will take place in Brussels, will offer an exploration of these subjects, some of them unexplored to date. It will also be an opportunity for renowned emeritus professors Richard Hyman and Rebecca Gumbrell-McCormick to present their latest book, Towards a European system of Industrial Relations? The ETUC in the 21st century, which covers the period 2004-2015.

These new historical contributions further enrich the resources that the ETUI is making available to current and future researchers for a more detailed understanding of the European trade union movement's contribution to building a more social Europe.
